AGENCY DISCLOSURE

Virginia law and regulations require real estate agents to disclose their agency relationships to all prospective customers and clients. In addition to meeting that requirement, this disclosure is intended to inform customers about agency relationships and the duties of real estate agents, brokers and firms. For convenience, Thalhimer and all other real estate agents, brokers and firms are hereinafter collectively referred to as "licensees" since they are all required to be licensed by the Virginia Real Estate Board.

AGENCY is the relationship formed when one person works for or represents another person by express authority. People whom licensees represent are called "clients". People who receive services from licensees without being represented by the licensees are called "customers". A licensee does not necessarily represent the person who pays him or her. As a result, a licensee can represent the buyer, but be paid by the seller, or vice versa. Although agency relationships can be formed without a written agreement, you should not assume that any person represents you unless you have a written agreement with such person. The agreement between the licensee and the client creates a brokerage relationship.

CLIENT STATUS. As a client, you enter into an agreement with a licensee for that licensee to represent you. This agreement may be called a "listing," a "management agreement," a "buyer broker agreement," or an "agency agreement," depending on whether you are a seller, landlord, buyer, or tenant. You are then the licensee's client. If the agreement is an exclusive agreement, you are required to work through that licensee. A licensee will generally be entitled to a commission if you buy, sell, or lease (as applicable) property, even if you do not use the services of the licensee. A licensee is required to provide you certain assistance, such as to fulfill contractual obligations, facilitate settlement or finalize a lease, and to disclose any material information related to the property or the transaction of which the licensee has actual knowledge. The licensee is also required not to disclose to other parties any personal or financial information about you or any other information you ask to be kept confidential.

CUSTOMER STATUS. As a customer, you do not sign an agreement with a licensee (although the licensee is still required to obtain this Agency Disclosure form executed by you). You are then the licensee's customer. The licensee may represent the other party in the transaction, who will be the licensee's client. You are not legally required to work through a licensee, and the licensee will only be entitled to a commission if you buy, sell or lease (as applicable) property through the licensee. A licensee can give you general advice and is required to treat you honestly and disclose material adverse facts known to the licensee regarding the physical condition of the property, but the licensee generally cannot give advice regarding price or assistance in negotiating favorable terms. The licensee is required to disclose to its client any information which it knows about you which might be helpful to the client. If you will be a customer, you should be aware that there may be other relevant information concerning the transaction which may be obtained from other sources.

ADDITIONAL DUTIES OF LICENSEES. In addition to the duties that are described above and any duties included in the agreement between the licensee and the client, a licensee has certain duties under Virginia law and the regulations of the Virginia Real Estate Board. A licensee must promote the interests of its client by seeking a buyer or tenant or an appropriate property for its clients, although a licensee is not required to continue these efforts after a contract has been signed, and by timely presenting all written offers and counter-offers. A licensee must account to its client for all money and property which the licensee receives in which the client has an interest. Before a licensee enters into a brokerage relationship, the licensee must advise the prospective client of the type of relationship which is proposed, the licensee's compensation and whether the licensee will share that compensation with a licensee who represents another party to the transaction. A licensee owes its clients a duty of ordinary care.

"Thalhimer" is a registered trade name for Morton G. Thalhimer, Inc., a Virginia corporation, which is a duly licensed real estate brokerage and services firm and an independently owned and operated business.

This is not an agreement, but only a disclosure form.
